WILLIAM STILL,

Author and Publisher of "The Underground Railroad,"

No. 244 SOUTH TWELFTH STREE

Philadelphia, July 3d 1873

Dear Mrs. Gary:

Your very little letter came to hand yesterday morning just as I was about to leave the City for a trip to Aunt Vina's at Burlington N.J., Consequently I have had no opportunity until now to answer your letter or to forward your Watch. But as I am now at my post again, I will attend to both without delay. The Watch will be forwarded by tomorrows Express.

Just here allow me to remark, that I have a great deal that I would be pleased to write you about if I only had the time, but it is now ten Minutes past 11 o'clock P.M. and I have several other letters to write tonight, so I can only see the chance for penning a few lines on the present occasion. "I had intended to run up", you say, "in vacation for a few hours" &c. I assure you that I very much regret the interference of that old visitor "the rheumatism", in this case, and if I had the means of affording instant relief, you may rest assured I would do so in double quick time. Indeed if the Spirit should move you again Come along although you may have to bring the rheumatism with you.

My book is doing very well. This morning the first order called for "20 Copys."; the 2nd order "13 do"; the 3rd order "12 do" & the 4th & last "6 do"- For a hot day like today this is not bad. The fact is I have my hands full day & night, yet I must confess I find much delight in the Management in the of my two branches of business - viz. the Coal & book.

You ask, "Am I right in hearing that you have Started a publishing house"? I cannot assume that I have started a publishing house, I am however the publisher of the Underground Rail Road.

I am a Subscriber to the "Era & Citizen" and have been taking a lively interest in watching the School quarrel. When & where will it end? I have always thought that Greener Made a Mistake in leaving the Institute in This City. And if "Henry Johnson" should prove to be "More than a Match &c", he likewise may see before a great while that it would have been wisdom on his part to have remained in the City of Brotherly Love. The "young men to the front" are a very bold set of fellows as a general thing. But what in the way of news - can be advanced in a single letter? My family are all in bed, in good health however. How about Howard?
